TYPES OF PLANNING

- Formal Planning
- Informal planning

- Strategic Planning
- Operational Planning

FORMAL PLANNING:

A Day-to-day routine and scheduled planning is called formal planning. In this planning they will think logically. people will schedule the plan properly and will think that which the necessary thing in day-to-day work and person list it down the notes to remember like our mothers who thinks logically and remembering things in day-to-day routine and person will plan their work in previous day for the next day so it is known as formal planning.

INFORMAL PLANNING:

The plan which is not written or documented but individual will plan in mind so it is called as informal planning. They will think the situation and then individual plan to that and will listen to others' opinions and will analysis different opinions and finally will plan accordingly like in Vidura Niti ,Vidura is a plan developer in mind and plan accordingly to it and also, listens to others rishi opinions then will evaluate to different ideas and finally will plan to that so it is known as informal planning.

He was an intelligent person, who was the supporter of king Druthurashtra and also follows dharma. VIDURA ADVICE TO KING

Dr. C. Yogambal

निश्चित्य यः प्रक्रमते नान्तर्वसति कर्मणः।

अवन्ध्यकालो पश्यात्मा स वै पण्डित उच्यते ॥

-Vidura Niti I.31

A wise man undertakes the tasks after due consideration and planning. Having taken up, he does not stop his endeavours in the middle and never wastes his time.

अनुबन्धानवेक्षेत सानुबन्धेषु कर्मसु।

सम्प्रधार्य च कुर्वीत सहसा न समाचरेत् ॥

-ViduraNiti II.8

The success of a plan depends on the ability of the doer, the nature of the plan and the purpose served by it. A plan may have several links and sub-plans.

The Vidura-Niti says that one should consider all these factors before commencing an action. The pros and cons should be analysed before proceeding with the work.

The plan should like the fruits of a tree.

यस्य कृत्यं न जानन्ति मन्त्रं वा मन्त्रिते परे।

कृतमेवास्य जानन्ति स वै पण्डित उच्यते ॥

-ViduraNiti I.30

A wise man's plans, action, policy or resolution are not made known to others beforehand but only after they are carried out.

वनस्पतेरपक्कानि फलानि प्रचिनोति यः।

स नाप्नोति रसं तेभ्यो बीजं चास्य विनश्यति ॥

-ViduraNiti II.15

He who plucks unripe fruits from a tree does not obtain juice from them and the seeds of the tree are also destroyed.

The idea is that having planned something, one should want of its results patiently. Hasty action will lead to the collapse of the plans. Explaining this further with the help of the same metaphor, the author says:

The Vidura Niti assumes tremendous significance and is one of those points that are directly applicable to our modern-day life – both professional and spiritual life. Why we should have a "Plan-B" for whatever projects or missions that we undertake? According to the philosophy of Operations Management, any project cannot be deemed successful without having multiple approaches towards completing it successfully. This is because there might be innumerable number and types of hurdles that might surface up during the execution stage of the project. For instance, if we are undertaking a major infrastructure project in a city like a "Metro-Rail" project, there might be many types of hurdles that might surface in the middle of such a huge project like opposition from city residents over the alignment of the project, issues pertaining to land acquisition, issues with respect to the contractor to whom the work is outsourced, government policies, etc. For each and every such issue, it is extremely important for the agency implementing this project to have an alternative solution, if in case any or many of these problems surface. All these should be conceptualized during the "Planning stage" of the project itself and this is very important. Similarly in our spiritual life too, we might come across many hurdles that might prevent us from progressing forward with our spiritual growth and development. We should try and make it a point that we are able to foresee such issues well in advance and try to come up with some specific solutions to tackle these issues and move forward. Vidura explains that a "Pandita" is a person who is able to foresee and anticipate problems in a mission well in advance and would seek to find out solutions for it, so as to counter them in an effective manner. This is an extremely important character not only for an effective king but also for our lives today. In fact, many of our problems that we face in today's life is mainly because of our lack of anticipation of the issue and lack of advanced planning to mitigate them successfully. This is what we call in corporate terms as "Plan-B". This is according to Vidura Niti book.

We all know that 'Prevention is better than cure' has been used in older days itself that means we have to take remedial measures before danger comes in other words, we say that we can plan it out before any disaster comes. In ancient days itself the people have been planned in all matters and now the word 'planning' has been continuing till now. Before planning we have to think twice and thrice on of planning and also before implementing it. As planning is a continuous process, planning cannot skip any of the process as without studying people are on exam hall so it has to go step-by-step. The plans and execution of plans should not be late if the plan is late than the problems for the plans will not be solved as 'digging a well when the house in ablaze with fire' which means dig a well and find water, and by then it will be too late to use that water to put out fire so the person have to plan as soon as possible and have to implement as soon as possible.

The plan has to be clearly blue printed according to the situation. The plan should be a sound plan so than the risk will totally be solved. In planning a person should set an objective and should implement according to it. There so many methods to plan but according to situation the plan must be utilize according to it. If we turn up the history, there are so many people who have achieved in so many things that persons have think cleverly planned and executed accordingly. The planned things should be stands for the future also so that if there is any risk we can turn up and see the plans. Preplanned is better than immediate plan because if a person plan before the risk appears the persons can implement it easily so that the risk can be easily solved. In planning there are so many types like policies, rules and procedures.

There is so many differences between single plan and group plan for example In Mahabharata, Pandavas have planned to win Kauravas meanwhile Kauravas have planned to win Pandavas in war so that is organizational planning In Ramayanam, the plan of Rama to rescue Sita is a single plan so like that there are so many examples in so many ancient literature. And also, there are so many kings have planned to capture the emperor. And also, our history talks about the great kings and ancient books and its plans now the current generation people came know about the kings planning in ancient period and also their execution. Planning is helpful in medicine, education, finance and so on. In many of the ancient books like Mahabharata, Arthasastra, Bhagavad Gita, Ramayana, have been mentioned details about the planning and its characteristics.
